NEW-YORK, THURSDAY, MARCH 29, 1860.

Brooklyn Politics, No. 2.—THE REPUBLICAN CITY CONVENTION AND ITS CANDIDATES—MR. Editors: Having shown the complete subjection to Know-Nothing influences, ander which the late Republican City Convention assembled, I do not mean to assert that its action is entitled to the confidence and support of high-minded members of the American party. It having been determined to use such patrons, ge as the Republican party could command, to debusnoh and destroy the American party, with the scheme found willing aid to Northup, Lewis, Lounsbury, Reston, and others. With one half the sacrifices that have been made to conciliate these men, the whole American party, with triffing exceptions, raight have been brought into the Republican fold. Thus therefore, while Republicans may be justly indignant at finding themselves under Know-Nothing leaders, who have been parchased by the patronge Republicans had won at fearful odds, there is nothing in the posture of affairs to give any estisfaction to Americans from principle; an attempt has been made to sell their birth-right as free-born Americans, for a mess of pottage.

Now, I have a word to say. Measure, the infamous water the champions, and profit, or seek to profit, by the infamous water the champions, and profit, or seek to profit, by the infamous Water bill of April, 1820, which, in reference to sewers, is more tyranical than the ediet of Louis Napoleon, by which whole ground the complete of the complete of the supplemental than the ediet of Louis Napoleon, by which whole grow the complete the complete of the infamous water that the complete of the compl aquares have been raced to make room for avenues, at once rendering his capital more magnificent and more defensible. Was here enything in the Lecompton Constitution which permitted small coterie of "Commissioners," holding effice independent in beyond the control of the people, to impose onerous taxesforcing public "improvements" more rapidly than the people are able to pay for them, for the benefit of an army of contractors. Such a law you have imposed upon the people of Brooklyn. Can they listen to your talk of "Lesomptonism," with the responsibility for this wile measure resting upon you? Again, the law of April, 1858, gave the appointment of two of the present Water Commissioners to a private board of Directors, who had temporarily been invested with the functions of public officers. If the temporary Commissioners might properly appoint a controlling portion of their successors, what is to prevent the present Commissioners from appointing their successors? and so on a diffinitum. Who shall say that the Aldermen may not appoint their successors? Or, recurring to the cessors? and so on ad infinitum. Who shall say that the Ali-dermen may not appoint their successors? Or, recurring to the manner of appointing Lewis and Northrap, why should not on the same grounds, the Directors of the Mechanics' Bank appoint the Controller, for the reason that they are largely interested in the finances of the city! Was there anything in the Lecomption Constitution or the Stamp Act to equal these outrages? The nominations of the Republican Convention were made with the single purposes of bolstering up the infamous measures I have ex-posed, and of furthering the schemes of men who have and are to profit by them. Will the tax-payers, casting adde in a muni-cipal election their party feelings, vote to overthrow these con-spirators against their political rights and the integrity of their hard-carned home-stead?

and Revised, Corrected and Enlarged, by EDMUND H. BENNETT, esq. 890.

"The present work, though not so large as that of Mr. Chitty, contains all the essential doctrines on the subject carefully stranged, and established on their proper principles. Nothing is more grateful to the student of the law than to be able to discern the reason on which rules are founded. Then he may truly half the gladome light of jurisprudence, which his great master, Lerd Coke, was so fond of contemplating. In the treatise before us, as in all that have preceded it from the same source, the suthor has carefully aimed to present the principles of the law. "The busy day of life is over. Its pleasures, its duties, and its anzieties have passed away. The sunsaine and the shade, which alternately marked its pain, have alike disappeared, and the soft tints of evening of life! yes, life has its senset hour, its twilight season. The dim eye, the alivered lock, and the feeble step indicate that the clesing period of earthly existence has arrived. How rapid has been the flight of time! now near must be the approach of eternity!"

"Messrs, Danny & Jackson: I have just closed the volume you placed in my namds two days ago, 'Our Bible-Class and the Good that Came of it,' and when I tell you that I have carefully and with acep interest read every one of its three hundred and lifty pages, at a single sitting, I give the best evidence of the pleasure it has afforded me. The author has my sincere thanks for the compliment she has paid the pupils of the Packer Collegiate Institute in her inscription. I hope t ey will all read it, and emiliate the characters presented for their imitation. I trust the work will have a wide circulation, as I am confident that its influence will be most salutary upon all who read it."

PATIENTS' AND PHYSICIANS' AID.

By Dr. E. M. HUNT, A. M., M. D., Author of "Physicians' Counsels," &c. This is a new and valuable book, which tells how to Preserve Health; What to do in Sudden Attacks, or until the Doctor comes; and how best to Profit by his Directions when given.

It is a work which should be in the hands of every Family and every Physician in the land. In a plain, concise, and interesting form, it imparts such information concerning Health and Disease as it is for the interest of both Patient and Physician to possess. Differing from any other book of the kind ever published in this country, we feel that it will fill as important space, and be valued by all so fortunate as to obtain it.

The following are a few of the subjects treated:
Exercise. Diet.
Ventilation. Doses of Medicine.
Laws of Health. Colds and Googhs.

Laws of Health. Colds and Coughs. Bathing.
How to Avoid Contagion.
Advice to Invalids.
Influence of Mind over Body.

Pallan, "With the present number of THE HOME JOURNAL we begin the publication of a new, piquant, and speckling noveletter translated expressly for our columns by Mrs. Marian M. Pallan, the well-known and gifted authoress of many popular works. This story is from the French of Octave Feuillet, whose 'Romance of a Poor Young Man' has not only been read by 'all the world,' but adapted to the stage, and played successfully, both in this country and Europe. 'Marriage by Will'—the title of the present narrative—in a recent work of this writer, and has never before been translated into English, nor published in this country. It is a tale of wonderful interest, replete with exciting incidents, and brilliant with descriptions of its vian life, morals, and manners. The scene is laid chiefly in Venice, where tradition affirms that most of the drumstances related in the story took pace. To enable the many admirers of this famous authorie works to read this, his hat and best production, we shall print a larger supply of this week's apper than usual.
